GET THE MOST OUT OF YOUR ZOOBMOBILE

• To make the strongest connection when connecting the chassis parts or adding ZOOB pieces to extend the chassis, turn the jaws of the connectors and the "acorns" as shown.

- You can use the Direction Control as a brake—just push the control in the opposite direction of the direction your Cruiser is traveling.
- Alkaline batteries will help your car go faster and farther.

Changes or modifications not expressly approved by the party responsible for compliance could void the user's authority to operate the equipment.

WARNING! AVOID RADIO INTERFERENCE

- Do not operate your R/C vehicle in an area near high-tension wires, telephone poles, high-voltage transformers or CB radios. These send interfering signals that will cause your vehicle to run erratically or have a loss of transmitter control.
- Do not operate another R/C vehicle with the same frequency nearby, this will also cause a loss of control. For two racers to operate at the same time, choose different frequencies, (one 49 MHz and one 27 MHz) as noted by the stickers on the top of the vehicle.
